

I would like to share my views on the Telephone Privacy Law which is currently enforced in Indiana.

This law has been very effective in reducing the amount of calls that I receive. I used to get ten to fifteen a week, now I only receive one or two. Raising children and teaching them to be polite is difficult, especially if the parent is just hanging up on the telephone because of the excessive time needed to tell the sales people that I don't want their products.

I commend Indiana in taking the lead in this issue and helping all of us to reduce the excessive overkill that telephone marketing has come to be. I hope that the FCC could make a national law restricting calls made to my house for marketing purposes.

Please do not make this law weaker.

Thank You,

Mark Tomac
